

Dance of the Astonished Topologist (...or how I left squares and hexes for math)

Tara Holm
Assistant Professor
Cornell University

I will give an introduction to some key ideas and tools in topology, including covering spaces and monodromy. The main example will come from square dancing, a hobby I picked up whilst a graduate student at MIT. No prior experience with topology or square dancing will be assumed.